Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

WITH adjournment only a few weeks away, congress still has before it the unsolved problem of how to amend the federal Food and Drug Act which has stood unchanged since 1906.

Edwards Digs Up Victim's Body to Save an American

Goes to Rescue of Fred Montgomery, Who Killed Mexican

NO CORPSE, NO TRIAL

Puzzled Officials Finally Exile Montgomery From Mexico

Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of twelve letters written by Sam McMath, formerly of Hope, on his experiences along the Mexican border.

Dear Mr. Norton:

In the spring of 1921 Paul Edwards disposed of his interest in the El Tule ranch, and returned to Del Rio where his family resided. A few months later, he purchased a ranch in Texas and has since made it his home. His holdings lie along the Nueces river about 40 miles from Del Rio.

In spite of stringent times and the low price of wool and mohair, he has given each of his four children a college education. His two eldest daughters are married; the youngest teaches school at Del Rio, and his son, Forrest, is his dad's business partner. No man was ever loved Paul Edwards; and at the same time no man was ever more loyal to his family and his friends than "Don Pablo." Beneath the gruff exterior of that hardy frontiersman lies a heart as tender and sympathetic as a mother's. Strong and sturdy as an oak, a believer in liberty and justice, he has always sided with the oppressed and unfortunate.

Fred Montgomery

Fred Montgomery is Paul's nephew. Fred is a quiet, unassuming sort of fellow, shy, diffident in the presence of strangers; but he doesn't know the meaning of fear. While Paul was at Del Rio in 1921, Fred secured a grazing lease on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, a few miles east of Villa Acuna. At that time, he was a young man just getting a start in life. With a light camping outfit and two Mexican assistants, he trailed a flock of sheep on his lease. Wherever night overtook him he bedded down. In other words, he lived under the bushes.

One night he made camp near the Rio Grande. Sometime after midnight he heard a commotion in his flock. He called the Mexican who was sleeping nearest him to get up and investigate the trouble. The Mexican either didn't hear or didn't like the idea of having his sleep disturbed. Anyway he didn't budge. Fred tossed a rock at his to awaken him. It struck the Mexican in the face. He came up with a bound and rushed at Fred with a big knife in his hand. Fred pulled his six-shooter, fired once and plugged him neatly through the heart.

Other Mexican, aroused by the shot, rushed up to see what had happened. He was told that if he didn't keep his trap closed, he too would be killed. The poor fellow was so frightened that he swore by all the Saints that he would keep the secret. He willingly assisted Fred in burying the slain man in a sandbar near the river. But he permitted Fred to overcome his sworn loyalty. Before noon he skipped out and he went to Villa Acuna and reported the tragedy to the Mexican officials. He was put in jail and held as a witness. Rurales arrested Fred and put him in the houseguest too.

A big celebration happened to be in full swing in Villa Acuna that day, and in the land of manana, a trivial thing like a murder investigation, is rarely permitted to interfere with the festivities. With slayer and witness in jail, I suppose the trial could safely await their convenience. No doubt they would have been more cautious had they known Fred was related to Paul Edwards.

Relief Appears

About mid-afternoon while everyone else was in Villa Acuna whooping it up with glads, poor Fred gazed at the festivities from the bars of his cell. Fortunately he was on the ground floor. Presently he saw an American passing. He whistled softly to attract his attention. When the fellow looked around, Fred laid a finger across his lips to indicate caution, silence. The American caught

Two bills are before the congress. The first is the drastic Copeland-Tugwell measure which would replace the old 1906 law with an entirely new bill, taking authority away from the courts and giving it to the Secretary of Agriculture.

The other proposal, the Stephens-Black bill, merely amends the 1906 act, including cosmetics as a subject for regulation, and otherwise bringing the old law up to date. It is obvious that if the 1906 law worked a worth-while reform it presents a safe and sane base for amendments and improvements.

The Stephens-Black bill is merely an enlargement upon a time-tried and tested principle—but the Copeland-Tugwell measure would forbid the right of private property to appeal to the courts, and would build up a new and powerful bureaucracy in the national capital.

Crusading newspapers and magazines backed up some public-spirited scientists and physicians nearly a generation ago to bring about passage of the Pure Food Law of 1906.

Enforcement of that law was safely entrusted to the courts. All that it needs today is amending to include new developments.

But the arbitrary spirit of the Copeland-Tugwell bill is repulsive, for the reason that it not only seeks to prohibit harmful remedies—the proper duty of the state—but it presumes also to say which remedies are actually helpful.

That is something else again. About half the American people are in the habit of practicing medicine upon themselves in varying forms—and to arbitrarily stop that is to breed trouble.

It is the duty of the state to forbid the circulation or sale of harmful substances, whether in food, medicine or cosmetics—but to say unequivocally that this trade brand "is good" or another one "is still better" means that the state has taken over an entire business.

We need an amended Food and Drug Act—not a brand new one. As for the objectives of the Copeland-Tugwell bill, these can be attained not by force but by argument and example.

The most persuasive argument this writer knows of is the daily medical series written for this newspaper by Dr. Morris Fishbein, national medical authority.

He teaches the true science of medicine, as opposed to quackery. More than that, he teaches the people themselves to be careful and wise—which is worth more than a thousand arbitrary laws.

Fred Fincher Is a Suicide Victim

Hempstead Man Succumbs at State Hospital—Burial Columbus

Fred Fincher, 26, Hempstead county man, died late Friday night in the state hospital for nervous diseases at Little Rock from self-inflicted injuries.

His body was to arrive here Saturday for burial services in the Columbus cemetery Saturday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. E. Clifton Rule, pastor of First Methodist church.

Fincher was admitted to the hospital about a week ago.

Surviving are his mother, two brothers, Oscar and Joe Fincher, all of near Washington.

Peace Returns to All Strike Fronts Except in Toledo

Minneapolis Truck Drivers End Their 11-Day Walkout

CAB STRIKE CLOSES

But in Toledo the Strikers Still Confront State Troops

By the Associated Press
While workers and soldiers maintained their battle front at Toledo, Ohio work was resumed Saturday in other places by truck drivers, newsboys, taxi drivers and hosiery workers.

The crackle of rifle fire formed a grim aftermath to strikers' refusals of peace proposals at the Electric Auto-Lite company's plant in Toledo, where National Guardsmen attempted to halt rioting.

The truck strike at Minneapolis, Minn., in which one man was killed and scores were injured in an 11-day walkout and riots, was settled as the drivers voted to accept the agreement.

Cleveland newsboys went back to work pending further negotiations, while Cleveland cab-drivers returned to the streets amid a shower of bricks from other drivers seeking to keep them in the garages.

A full working force at the Real Silk Hosiery mills in Indianapolis, Ind., was assured when an agreement was reached at a conference ending a month-old strike.

First Coral Snake Found in County

Rare Variety Discovered by Patmos Man for St. Louis Zoo

A particular species of a coral snake, sought in this section by zoologists for some time, was brought to Hope Thursday and turned over to Dr. P. B. Carrigan who indicated that he would ship the snake to St. Louis where it will be added to a zoological collection and used for scientific purposes.

The snake was captured near Patmos by Gilbert Ellidge, of that community. The reptile is the first of its kind ever found in this section, although New Orleans naturalists believed the snake could be located in this vicinity.

The coral snake is characterized by the brilliant coloration in the form of a series of red and dark blue rings with yellow bands between them. Two species in the Southeastern part of the United States, it is very secretive and of burrowing habits, spending a large portion of its life underground. The coral snake ranges from southern United States to Argentina. These snakes are highly dangerous and more poisonous than the rattlesnake or "cotton mouth" snake. The coral snakes in the tropics attain a considerable larger size than those in the United States, as those found here are rather small. The Sonoran coral snake is only found in New Mexico and Arizona. Coral snakes are allied closely to the deadly Cobras of India and Africa.

The snake is on display at John S. Gibson's drugstore window.

Hope Basketball Team Wins 24 of 28 Season Games

Coach Jones' Team Makes Best Record in History of City

TO QUARTER-FINALS
Bobcats Once Played and Won Eight Games in Single Day

Coach Teddy Jones' Bobcats, runners up in district 10, enjoyed the most successful year in basketball of any team in the history of the school. The goal tappers of Hope High School amassed the impressive records of 24 games won out of 28 played, won the county tournament, in the district, and reached the quarter finals in the state basketball tournament at Harrison. Of the four games that were lost three were dropped to the highly touted Walkerville quintet, champions of the district, and semi-finalists in the state tournament. The other contest was dropped to Columbus by the narrow margin of two points.

The Bobcats played the most formidable team in the district and were usually victorious by overwhelming margins; this is attested by the fact that the Bobcats averaged over a point a minute for the entire season collecting 800 points to their opponents' 581, or a comparative average of 36½ points per game to their opponents' 24.

Win 8 Games in Day
The most impressive feature of the Bobcats' play was displayed at the district tournament at Stamps. Coach Jones' men were eliminated from the championship bracket by Walkerville, champions of the district and on the final day of the tournament were forced to play eight games, winning all of them in order to finish second place.

The letter men as announced at the end of the year and a few remarks concerning each are: Kenneth Madison, versatile forward, fast, a fast breaker and had an unerring eye on middle distance shots. Mat led the entire team in scoring, looping up 283 points for the season, and making the all-district first team.

R. C. Kennedy ran Madison a close second and collected 217 points for the year. He was a regular forward, and height, ability to follow rebounds, and shoot fouls made him a most valuable man.

Hendrix Spraggins, hefty six foot-three center, was the backbone of the team. Hendrix jumped center at offense and then dropped to the back guard hole. It was virtually impossible for opponents to get the tip-off on Spraggins and he controlled the rebounds in every game. Opposing coaches readily admitted that Spraggins was the key-man of the Bobcats, and Coach Jones attributed a major part of the team's success to Hendrix. He is the only regular to be lost next year.

England at guard made the second all-district team, collected 182 points for the year, was the most outstanding floor man in the district. This was Leonard's third year on the team.

Ray Turner, who alternated at forward and guard in the starting lineup was a consistent man. His best play was in his state tournament at Harrison and his brilliant play brought him state-wide recognition from the coaches. Ray scored 190 points for the entire year.

Toadie Cargile, Jack Turner and Jack Simpson were the reliable substitutes of the team. Their play could always be depended on and it is chiefly due to them that the Bobcats could stand up to the gruelling play of the district tournament.

Only Spraggins and Turner will be lost to the team through graduation, so Coach Jones is predicting another formidable aggression for the 1935 campaign.

Mellon Demands Refund on Taxes

U. S. Couldn't Indict Him, Now He Is Suing for $139,000

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon Friday answered the government's $1,978,621 income tax case against him with a demand for $139,043 refund.

The former secretary of the Treasury, whom a Pittsburgh grand jury refused to indict for tax evasion, stated his case in petition to the Board of Tax Appeals replying to the Treasury deficiency assessment on Mellon's 1931 income.

Mellon said he paid the Internal Revenue Bureau $647,559 on his 1931 income. He listed charitable contributions of $3,821,178 that year.

Mellon's appeal was filed shortly after the Justice Department announced full payment by Thomas S. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., of government income tax claims and penalties. Lamont was named by attorney General Cummings along with Mellon, Thomas Sidlo, a Cleveland lawyer and James J. Walker, as among several hundred against whom the government is seeking to collect additional taxes.

Sidlo, a law partner of Newton D. Baker, previously had paid in full the claims against him. The department has not disclosed what progress is being made against Walker, New York's former mayor, who now lives abroad.

Mellon's petition reviewed the May 7 action when a grand jury returned the government's presentment as "not a true bill." He further said he was not given the same treatment accorded other taxpayers by the commissioner of internal revenue, Guy T. Halvering.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Couzens Burns Borah: Too Dumb to Vote in Senate . . . New Name Is Wanted For Subsistence Homesteads . . . Penny Vote Proves C. O. P. Still Lives . . . Black Certain to Quit Banking Post.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Ten years ago Senator James Couzens, the blunt and honest Michigan millionaire who made his fortune with Henry Ford, privately offered to finance a presidential campaign for Senator William E. Borah if Borah would run.

Now Couzens has given Borah the worst plastering the great Idahoan ever received from anyone. Losing his temper, he implied that Borah was too dumb to be entitled to a vote in the Senate.

"Of course you simply don't say that sort of thing to me," said Borah. "Least of all do you say it to me."

Couzens was supporting an amendment to the industrial loans bill when Borah asserted his belief that neither amendment nor bill would help the small industries. Couzens lost his temper.

"The senator apparently injects himself into a subject which he has not thoroughly analyzed," he declared hotly. "I see the senator's name blazoned in newspaper headlines as endorsing the infamous McLeod bill."

"I do not know how accurate the newspaper is in that statement, but I know who is so lacking in judgment as to endorse the so-called McLeod bill. It is not entitled, in my judgment, to vote on the floor of the Senate."

Borah took it calmly, but pressed the question. Couzens, more mildly, explained.

Couzens wouldn't repeat his presidential campaign offer today, but he doesn't really feel that way about Borah. Hard work at the London conference and in the Michigan banking news, steadily grinding on tax, banking, and other difficult measures has frayed his nerves.

Some years ago Couzens rashly remarked that senators had "too little to do." After that, leaders gave him so much to do that the work is wearing him down.

Wanted—A Cheering Name

President and Mrs. Roosevelt are the chief instigators of the plot to change the name of "Subsistence Homesteads" to something more attractive. The present name is too suggestive of grubbing around in a vegetable patch for snarky remarks to eat off of starvation.

"Subsistence Homesteads" is the most offensive of many names submitted in response to a fake request for a prize was being offered. Dr. D. W. M. L. Wilson still hopes something will coin an even better phrase.

Wilson says the three big ideas of the H. H. project are security, comfortable life of leisure time, and opportunity for craftsmanship and self-expression.

The C. O. P. Still Lives

The important aspect of the Pennsylvania primary result, to insiders here, is the answer to a serious question: Is the continued existence of the Republican party, if Governor Fisher and defeated Senator Reed, that domination point would have led to overshadow the whole campaign year.

Senator Fisher had been telling people that there were no longer two parties that they had just merged. Now he must get any possible encouragement for the idea from Democratic rather than Republican primaries.

But the question was in many minds, and the answer was indicated by the fact that the political sharks were actually expecting vindication of the New Deal in a purely Republican contest in the strongest Republican state of all.

Black Determined to Quit

Reynolds paid an unusual tribute to Gov. Eugene R. Black of the New Deal Reserve Board made his most emphatic attempt to quit.

Under order to the marines to keep out of the state if necessary, he threatened Black will go. For months important personal interests have been cutting him back to Atlanta.

With the whole monetary and credit situation in a state of flux, Black has been in a hot spot. Originally he was a good money man, but went over to Roosevelt's modified version of sound money.

Confronted, although unspectacular, the governor has been of great assistance in teaching conservative banking and business interests as to New Deal currency policies.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

All Play and No Work Can Also Make Jack a Dull Boy

All children should work. No, I don't mean standing in mills, but to work either in the house or yard, or even to help dad stack up the cans in the store.

I am an advocate of child labor, just as I am a champion of child play and child freedom of the right sort. An advocate of labor in this way-of duties that put some iron into them and condition them to work habit later in life.

It's perfectly silly to bring up children on a diet of soap and then expect the mild enjoy hard food later on, silly and criminal to say. "They are just children once," and let them get lazy expect every one in the house to stand around and wait on them while they never turn a finger.

Self Life Harmful

It is unfair to the child to have a nurse as a governess at his beck and call to look after him, even if it is reversed and he has to "thank" it. If he has to make no or little effort to look after himself physically, it is all wrong. It is unkind and short-sighted to keep girls out of the kitchen and say, "They'll learn to cook quickly enough when they are married."

Maybe they will, but not being "conditioned" to cook, they will hate it very likely. Or only like it as long as they are emotionally interested.

Too many children go through school and emerge in utter confusion to the world of work—the world of "must." Or having to use their hands and mind to support their bodies. They are suddenly expected to develop work habits entirely foreign to their natures.

They have studied, of course, and that is labor. I do not discount that—but expect in the cases of self-earned education they cannot be expected to face the new situation cheerfully when the world stares to see what they will make of themselves.

Preparation for Life

Who makes the steady, to-be-depended-upon clerk or stenographer or secretary? The girl who had to get up and help get breakfast and clean her room and scrub the porch Saturday. Who makes the dependable business man or earnest professional? The boy who had to tend furnace and grill and put through a daily job regularly. Or had to see papers.

As it happens most children do have some home duties to attend to, but how many of them are made to feel responsible for regular tasks?

There is, of course, the type of parent who goes too far and preempts all of the child's free time. It seems to me that this is one phase of child training in which we go to extremes. The "driver" parent is doing as much harm as the easy parent. It is a wise mother who recognizes the need of playtime and worktime, too, and who can adjust a nice balance.

Balance Work and Play

Just as we as ally the youngsters to live perpetually on Easy Street, and wear ourselves out trying to save them from the secret of work, we are knocking the mortar from between the bricks of nationalistic strength.

But individually we are undermining them, too and misleading them. They cannot live for eighteen or twenty years without any idea of self-help without going soft at the core when they need every bit of strength of character they can summon at the crisis of their lives.

Vacation is coming. It is to be filled with idling, or with it have a few daily loads of useful duties? Remember to leave a child's day. A lot of time for everything.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Lemon Rinse, Besides Removing Suds Efficiently, Leaves the Hair Soft

The little things are what count most in the beauty game. If you want to be considered well groomed and elegant, don't leave the details of the toilet must be given attention.

Don't smart the Beauty shop with your finger wave covered with wave lotion and plastered against your head. Have the operator comb it out before you leave the place. If it's a good wave and is thoroughly dry, there's no reason why combing it right there and then will hurt it. If it won't withstand combing, your operator should give you another one.

Here are two little items about rinses: A lemon rinse (the juice of two fresh lemons in the last rinsing water) will remove every trace of soap from the hair and, in addition, will leave it soft and shiny.

A vinegar rinse (about half a cupful in the last rinsing water) makes the hair more manageable. It, too, removes all soap suds.

Get a wide-mesh hairnet to wear at night—that is, if you want to preserve a finger wave or a marcel. And, for the same reason, have a light-fitting bathing cap to wear in the shower.

French Alarmed at War Prospect

Small Investors Rush to Convert Savings Into Cash

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Growing fear of the average Frenchman that war with Germany is inevitable was reflected in Thursday's newspapers and on the Bourse.

Stocks slumped and government bonds particularly heavily as small investors, terrified by newspaper headlines, scurried to get their savings back into the family sock.

At the Chamber of Deputies, the Radical Socialist party, backbone of the national union government, held a caucus which reflected the secret dread of every young Frenchman today—that the term of compulsory military service will be increased from one year to two, as it was on the eve of the World war.

Nearly all of the Radical deputies expressed opposition to two years service, although some envisaged the possibility of boosting the term of service to 18 months during the "hollow years" from 1934 to 1939.

Finally, after adopting a resolution expressing hope that the present effectives would be reorganized to guarantee national defense, without increasing the term of service, the Radicals voted to question the government on its intentions, hoping thus to clear the atmosphere. This is expected to be somewhat embarrassing to Premier Gaston Doumergue, as evidently he cannot commit himself not to ask an increase of the term of service while seeking thus to avoid it as long as possible.

The public is getting seriously alarmed over the Saar. Afternoon newspapers play up Wednesday's news of the theft of military documents in Saarbruecken and the violent Nazi demonstrations against the French student in Saar Louis. The government is preoccupied with the Saar problem and Thursday's cabinet meeting discussed the advisability of a formal protest to the League of Nations.

These incidents strengthen the French determination not to let the Saar plebiscite take place until Chancellor Hitler has given guarantees there will be no more reprisals against French supporters and to ask for an international police force. Many well informed Frenchmen believe that a deal might be struck in the Saar almost any day, thus plunging Europe into chaos, but there is no reason to believe that French steel interests are trying to convince the government and public that the situation is worse than it really is.

New Orleans Ties Up Highway Funds

Had Been Denied Its Due Share Since Long Candidates Lost

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—The round round of the battle between the city of New Orleans vs. the state of Louisiana was fought Friday and the state Highway Commission found all its funds bottled up.

The fight, bitterness of which has increased since Huey Long's candidacy were defeated in the majority election of January, entered a new phase. Members of the Highway Commission declare that employees will have to be discharged and all work stopped.

Under the state constitution, the Highway Commission is directed to pay the city $700,000 annually in quarterly installments for construction and maintenance of its streets in the highway system. For several quarters the payment was not made.

The city went into the courts and won decision after decision in the East Baton Rouge Parish Court and Supreme Court—all ultimately directing the state to make payments.

Friday, Judge George K. Fayot in the local court directed the commission to place in escrow $175,000, the amount due March 31, or refrain from paying out any revenues for any other purposes.

Attorney General Gaston L. Portier said that he would immediately appeal to the supreme court for a mandamus to permit filing of an intervention to restrain the commission from paying out money owed the city except on a pro-rata basis, with other constitutional obligations.

In the legislature, a bill has been introduced.

How slowly mortals learn. We come and go. Repeating over the same blunders o'er. Once the great Wordsworth, sick at heart and sore. Watching the pageantry of pomp and show. And the sham triumphs humans strive to know. Write this brief line man's avarice to deplore. "Plain living and high thinking are no more." And still for us the flowers he cherished grow. Ever it seems his "homely beauty" waits. For men with rapturous ecstasy to find. Fortune alone is welcome at our gates. And vainly taps the joys of gentler kind. Yet with so little we could brave the fates. And find contentment were we so inclined. —E. G. A.

U. S. Graft Probe Opened in Philly

Another Charge of Forced Political Campaign Contributions

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The federal government set out Thursday to track down the second recent charges that government workers were being required to make political campaign contributions—this one involving the Philadelphia Internal Revenue Office.

Although the investigation had brought to light Thursday a similar inquiry into charges involving a federal office at Detroit, Michigan, were in close sequence, Treasury officials said no general campaign to search the cases of political fund solicitation.

The Treasury and Civil Service Commission were jointly concerned in the inquiry into charges that employees in the Philadelphia office of the collector a financial revenues had been assessed for political war chests.

The Philadelphia collector, Alvin F. Fix, has denied political assessments were levied in his office.

Treasury officials received without comment a newspaper report that the department was investigating charges of graft involving the New York City customs office.

Graft Investigation
NEW YORK.—(AP)—The World-Telegram said that regularities, laxity and graft "which may have cost the public millions of dollars" have been discovered in a secret investigation of the United States Customs Service here.

The evidence, the World-Telegram said, has been obtained by a squad of five Department of Justice operatives assigned last year at the direction of President Roosevelt, and upon the application of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

The investigators will report their findings to Secretary Morgenthau within a few days the World-Telegram said. Evidence is sufficient to warrant criminal action, according to the investigators, the newspaper declared.

The World-Telegram said the inquiry covered the government legal division, the Customs Court, the Warehouse bureau and the Liquidation bureau, also touching upon acceptance of gratuities by customs inspectors.

Mrs. Hugh Pence and daughter, Miss Mary Pence of Conway are the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Carigan.

McClain C. M. Harrington, John McCall, W. S. Berry, and Henry Turner of Texarkana, and Mrs. E. A. Reasons of Foreman, were recent visitors to this city, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bader.

Federated Clubs Close Convention

Women Ask Passage of Arms-Control Bill by Congress

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Delegates to the 16th annual council meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs patted themselves on the back Friday night as they counted up the achievements of the final business session of their week-long conference.

The endorsed unanimously passage of the crime control bills now pending in Congress.

The endorsed, lacking but nine votes of unanimity, study by federation members of the equal rights amendment.

They received their first response, and it was a heartening one, from the barrage of 209 messages they sent the house ways and means committee protesting against the deletion of smaller arms from the fire-arms bill.

They endorsed unanimously the investigation of "the profits in war" provided for in the Nye-Vandenberg resolution.

They heard themselves called upon to remake the motion picture industry, to agitate for state labor prison laws and to work toward the conservation of natural resources.

They heard debates on old-age pensions and compulsory unemployment insurance and then, open-mindedly commenting neither pro nor con, ended up by endorsing resolutions providing that both measures be studied by the federation during the coming year.

As the concluding event of the day, they viewed a presentation of candidates for the triennial election in 1935.

Nominees are: For president, to succeed Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, who automatically retires in 1935—Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson of Tulsa, Okla., and Dr. Josephine L. Peirce of Lima, Ohio.

1934 Squad Makes Its Bow to Hope

Picked Bobcat Teams Battle 0-0 in Practice Contest

Spring football practice was concluded here Friday night when two evenly matched teams picked from the Bobcat squad battled through 60 minutes of play in a scoreless tie at the high school athletic field.

The game was without thrills, due to only two weeks of training, but football fans had an opportunity to see an array of new material in action which Coach Teddy Jones hopes to develop into the best high school team ever turned out here.

Among the most promising of the new candidates are Stone, G. Brown, Payne, Elliott, Kesterson, O'Donnell, C. Brown and Hitchcock.

Payne was last year's quarterback and captain of the Nashville High School Scorpions. It was Payne who led the Scorpions to a decisive victory over the Bobcats here last fall.

Elliott and Brown are two speedy backs who will give such veterans as Madison, Harper, Spours, and Pete Brown, a hard fight for a backfield position on next fall's team.

Elliott is a broken field runner and adept passer. C. Brown is one of the best punters and line smashers in this section of the state.

"Buffalo" Kesterson, Stone and G. Brown are hefty tackles that Coach Jones is counting heavily upon for next year.

The average period attendance was in excess of 30, class attendance running as high as 55.

The director of the course was Miss Alma Bowman, one of the several associate directors working under the supervision of the department of Religious Education in the assembly.

Jap Patterson of Morrilton, director of Religious Education in the synod of Arkansas was here for several days.

Text books and books in the general reading course were as follows: Beginners in God's Word, by Shields; Learning to Know God Better, by Shields; Exploring the Trail with the Master Guide, by Newton, The Lane Where Jesus Lived, by Spratt; Guiding Kindergarten Children by Shields; Teaching Primaries in the Church School, by Smith, How Shall I Learn to Teach Religion, by carrier.

Father of Pal Is Barrow's Tip-Off

Irvin Methvin Taken to Shreveport for Police Protection

GIESLAND, La.—(AP)—Sheriff Henderson Jordan of Bienville parish, passed through here Friday en route to Shreveport with Irvin Methvin, father of Henry Methvin, alleged member of the Barrow gang. He was quoted as saying that he was taking the elder Methvin to Shreveport for "safe-keeping."

The elder Methvin sought the protection of the sheriff after a number of cars had visited his house Thursday night in a mysterious manner and he was fearful for his safety.

It has been reported that the elder Methvin furnished the "tip" that led to the ambush of Barrow and his woman, Bonnie Parker, who were shot to death by officers five miles from here Wednesday morning while the pair were heading for a hideout near Alabama Bend.

Methvin's truck was at the scene of the killing and Barrow was reported to have slowed his car down when the shooting occurred.

Buried at Dallas
DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Clyde Champion Barrow—until three days ago the most feared killer in the Southwest—was buried at sunset Friday night in a West Dallas hillside near his boyhood home.

Seven hunters snatched flowers from the mound of earth as Barrow's mother was led weeping from the grave.

Across the city in a funeral parlor, the torn body of Clyde's paragon, Bonnie Parker, was ready for transfer to the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma Parker, awaiting private funeral services Sunday.

For two days and nights crowds fought for a chance to file through the chamber in the funeral home here for a last look at Clyde's murderer, a 24, who had murdered a dozen men in cold blood.

The Rev. Clifford Aiden, Pentecostal minister, intoned from Job as he sought to console weeping friends and relatives at the funeral home.

"I have not had the privilege of knowing this young Barrow," he said, "but I love him. Raymond Hamilton, (Clyde's partner in crime for several years) once said to me, 'A lot of people don't know Clyde and Bonnie. I have seen them kneel down and pray.'"

The press of the crowd was such at the cemetery that an aunt and a young woman cousin of the dead outlaw fainted.

Ironically, Raymond Hamilton, who was delivered from the Eastern prison farm last January in a raid engineered by Barrow, went back there to chop wood only a few hours before his old-time leader was buried. He is under a sentence of 362 years for a variety of crimes.

Hamilton, recaptured recently, is due to face trial for the slaying of Major Croswon, a prison guard killed in the break of Hamilton and four other convicts. The state will demand the death penalty.

Equal Labor Right Asked for Women

Woman Attorney Addresses Conference at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—A fair field in labor for women unhampered by restrictive laws, was asked by Mrs. Eunice Shelton Matthews, Washington attorney and representative of the National Women's Party, in an address before the council of the General Federation of Women's clubs here Thursday.

EDWARDS DIGS UP

the warning. He cased over, leaned against the prison wall within a foot of Fred's window, lit a cigarette and proceeded to evince an intense interest in the sky and horizon.

Fred poured out his tale of woe. He requested the Arabian to return to Del Rio immediately, find Paul Edwards and tell him to get across the Rio Grande, dig up the slain man and replant him on Texas soil.

Paul and another fellow whose name I do not recall, forded the river just at sundown. It was an easy matter to find the grave. Big green flies swarmed around blood spots on the ground. In order to elude river guards Paul and his friend concealed themselves in the reed thicket until darkness had fallen.

The slain Mexican was removed from the hastily made grave, and wrapped in a tarpaulin. After the hole had been carefully refilled, the body was carried to the Texas side of the river and buried in a deep grave beside a clump of mesquites. There it remains to this day. Luck was with the conspirators, for the heavy rain that fell during the night destroyed every trace of their activities.

Early the following morning, Mexican officials accompanied by the United States laborers with spades, repaired to the scene of the tragedy. The star witness pointed out the spot where the body had been buried. Laborers proceeded to dig. They dug a trench big enough to change the course of the river but no body came to light. They returned to Villa Aquana sans evidence, but Fred was hailed into court just the same.

He was charged with slaying a man and disposing of the body. He pleaded not guilty. Needless to state, Paul was present and managed to give Fred a sign that all was well.

The court realized that without the corpus delicti, the prisoner could not be convicted legally. But the court was also aware that something about the affair was reeking with a nauseating stench. The presiding official advised Fred, for the sake of his own safety and the peace and dignity of the state of Coahuila, to dispose of his sheep and leave and stay there. No return was necessary to induce Fred to heed what was obviously a veiled threat.

The last time I saw Fred was in the spring of 1925. On that occasion, he and Paul were my guests in San Antonio. Up to that time he hadn't heard of any business, business, social or otherwise, of sufficient importance to demand his attention in Villa Aquana or any other part of Mexico.

"Men in White" at the Saenger

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy Here Sunday and Monday

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy head the cast of "Men in White," which comes Sunday and Monday to the Saenger. This marks the first time these two popular players have ever been cast opposite each other.

"Men in White" is based on this season's famous New York stage play of the same name by Sidney Kingsley. It is a story told in vivid strokes of life in a great modern hospital.

Medical men in white—able to heroes and its villains. The nobility of a superior profession is extolled in high drama.

Clark Gable, as Dr. Ferguson, a young interne, is ambitious to become a great surgeon like Dr. Hochberg (Jean Herscholt). But he is also in love with Laura, a young heiress (Myrna Loy). The two, in the demanding business of surgery, do not go together.

breach is inevitable, and in disappointment Gable enters into a liaison with Barbara, a nurse (Elizabeth Allan). As a result of this Barbara is forced to visit a "quack" for an illegal operation, which finally results in peritonitis. Dying, Barbara undergoes an operation which is a futile attempt to save her life—at the hands of the man she loves. Gable, with Herscholt's help, performs the operation while Myrna Loy, faint and trembling, stands agape as a witness. The play ends on a high, poignant note of promise and retribution.

1/4 Billion Writeup by Cities Service
The story was told by Robert E. Hooley, commission attorney, and A. E. Lundvall, commission investigator, who has spent two years tracing the growth and methods of the company from its inception in 1910 as a $25,000,000 property to its $1,000,000,000 status in 1930.

Major items in Lundvall's report detailed write-ups of nearly $25,000,000 and the creation of giant holding companies whose actual business functions were nominal. Commission experts term a write-up an appreciation of book value without additions to capital investment or plant.

Exception to most of Lundvall's finds were taken by Robert Burns, Cities Service lawyer, who deplored there were any unfair valuation increases, and endorsed the holding company method of financing and defended Doherty's control by pointing to the approval given his operations in stockholders' meetings.

The good parties are the ones you miss.

Phone Rate Probe Awaits Congress

5-State Conference Held Up Until Authorized by Law to Act

LITTLE ROCK.—The proposed conference of rate investigating agencies in the five states in which the Southwestern Bell Telephone company operates to discuss plans for a joint investigation will not be called until after the fate of the communications bill in congress is determined, it was said Friday by P. A. Lasley, chairman of the Arkansas Fact Finding Tribunal.

Mr. Lasley wrote members of the public service corporations of Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas several weeks ago proposing a conference to consider the possibility of a joint appraisal and investigation being made. Commissioners of all the states tentatively approved the suggestion, but some thought no progress could be made unless such joint investigations are authorized by federal statute.

It was proposed that a conference be held in Little Rock about June 15, but Mr. Lasley said Friday that commissioners in some of the other states had expressed a desire that the conference be deferred until about the middle of July. The communications bill has passed the senate and it is expected that it will be acted upon by the house within the next few weeks.
